BACKGROUND
John Mark, author of the Book of Mark, was the son of Mary, a devout woman who lived in Jerusalem and in whose home early Christians assembled. Mark was a cousin of Barnabas, and traveled with both Barnabas and Paul. It is possible that Mark was converted to Christ through the ministry of Peter, and later he acted as Peter’s interpreter and helper.

The Book of Mark is considered by many to be the earliest of the Gospels, probably written between A.D. 50 and 67. The book was likely written from Rome for the purpose of reaching the Gentile Christians, to prove unquestionably to them that Jesus Christ was the Messiah.

From the opening words, “The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God . . .,” Mark established Jesus’ credentials. The book documents the ministry of John the Baptist, then tells of the baptism of Jesus, His temptation, and the call of the disciples. By the third chapter, Jesus is already beginning to face opposition.

Most of the events recounted in these first three chapters took place in the area of Galilee. Capernaum, a city on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee, was an economic center and had a military installation. This city became Jesus’ headquarters.

The narrative is fast-paced, and the Greek word eutheos, translated straightway, seems to be a favorite of Mark’s. While various English words are used, the original word was used eight times in the first chapter and thirty-nine times in the other fifteen chapters.

SUGGESTED RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS
1. What aspects of John the Baptist’s ministry were identified in Mark 1:3-4? In what way does this message apply to us today?

Several aspects could be mentioned. Verse three brings out that John the Baptist was commissioned to proclaim the coming of the Messiah and prepare His way. Ask your students to suggest ways we can present Christ today. Some of their examples might include witnessing to others, giving a thoughtful word or smile, offering to pray for someone who is experiencing difficulties, etc.

John the Baptist also called the people of Israel to repentance for the remission of sins. Today, repentance is still the only route to a right relationship with God through the remission (pardon, deliverance, or forgiveness) of sins. A person who has a repentant heart will recognize the wrongs he has done and be sorry for them. This great regret about sin will cause a desperate desire for change in the person’s ways and habits.

Your students may also mention that John’s baptizing of individuals who had decided to give up sinful ways and turn to God is a clear example of the ordinance of water baptism for believers.

2. Jesus’ water baptism was a milestone in His earthly life. Prior to that event, He had been little known. When He came to be baptized by John, He was publicly introduced as the Messiah, and shortly would begin His ministry. Why do you think His personal baptism was necessary? Mark 1:9-11

God used this occasion to show His approval and witness to Jesus’ ministry. This was also a witness to the Trinity because God spoke and the Spirit descended like a dove upon Jesus. Further class discussion could also bring out that Jesus was baptized to show support for John’s ministry, and to give us an example to follow in the ordinance of water baptism.

3. What does Christ expect us to give up to follow Him, and what can we learn from the disciples’ response to Jesus’ call? Mark 1:16-18

God requires a full surrender of our hearts and a yielding to Him of our all. We may feel that we have nothing good to bring to Jesus and that others have more to give, but that is not the point. God is looking for those who will let Him control their lives. Heaven will be filled with those who gave their all.

The disciples left their livelihood and changed lifestyles, and they did it “straightway.” You might ask your class the advantages of responding to the Lord quickly, and the disadvantages of postponing our response when He calls. Some of your students may be willing to share personal experiences.

4. While Jesus was in the synagogue on the Sabbath, one who had an evil spirit spoke out about Jesus. How did Jesus respond to the man possessed by the evil spirit? (Mark 1:23-26) What does this account tell us about evil spirits and Jesus’ power?

Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and He did not accept demonic testimony to His lordship. Any truth spoken by evil spirits may be mixed with lies and deception. Although Jesus would later proclaim Himself the Son of God, His own statement of the message would be pure. In every case where Jesus confronted evil spirits, He rebuked it and caused it to leave.

This account gives the believer hope that Jesus not only has authority and ability to forgive sins, but also to deliver from the power that causes sin. Jesus came to destroy the works of the devil and to defeat him in every way.

5. When Jesus left the synagogue, He went to the house of Simon Peter and Andrew. As soon as they entered the house, Jesus was told about Simon’s mother-in-law being sick. How did Jesus respond to the problem? (Mark 1:31) What difference should it make in our lives that Jesus has the power to heal the sick and deliver the demon-possessed?

Jesus healed Simon Peter’s mother-in-law. Each of the Gospel writers reported what stood out to them, and often they highlighted different details. Matthew’s account mentions that Jesus touched the woman’s hand (Matthew 8:14-15). Luke added that Jesus spoke to the fever and it left her (Luke 4:38-39). In Mark’s account, He helped her up. These accounts do not conflict. Each writer chose to highlight different details of the account in order to emphasize certain characteristics of Jesus. We get a more complete picture as we read all of the accounts. The important point is that Jesus has power to heal the sick.

Today we can go to God in prayer, knowing that He has the power to meet our every need. If we are sick, we can be healed through the same power that was available when Jesus walked on earth. Those who are bound by demon possession can be delivered in the same way.

You could bring out to your class that Jesus was able to help Simon Peter’s mother-in-law because He was an invited guest in their home. Think what Peter and his family would have missed if they had not invited Jesus to their house! What are some of the blessings we will enjoy if we invite Jesus into our homes?

6. In the second chapter, Jesus came to a house in Capernaum, which became so full that there was no more room to enter. What do the details in Mark 2:3-4 tell about the paralytic man and his friends? What motivated Jesus to respond to the man’s plight? Mark 2:5

Class discussion could bring out that the man seemingly was desperate for help. He and his friends all demonstrated faith—the paralytic by being willing to be carried to Jesus, and the four men by putting their faith into action, proving that they believed if they could get their friend to Jesus, he would be healed. The extreme steps they took show the determination they had to reach Jesus. Their faith and determination resulted in more than healing; the sick man was also pardoned from his sins.

Jesus was motivated to respond to these men because of their faith. The Greek word pistis translated as faith in verse 5, indicates a strong conviction of belief and assurance of an answer to their request.

7. Several times Mark referred to an event taking place on the Sabbath day. What did the disciples do that outraged the Pharisees? How were the Pharisees misguided about the Sabbath? Mark 2:23-28 What benefits result from honoring the Lord’s Day?

The disciples plucked corn and broke the kernels off; or as Luke says, “[Rubbed] them in their hands” (Luke 6:1). The Pharisees were outraged with the disciples because the Law did not allow work on the Sabbath, and they deemed that the disciples had violated the Law by their actions.

It might be interesting to point out to your class that the Jewish legal traditions had thirty-nine categories of activities that were forbidden on the Sabbath. Harvesting was one of them. The Pharisees went so far as to describe different methods of harvesting that were forbidden, and one of these was to rub the heads of grain between the hands, as the disciples did.

The Pharisees were misguided in that they were locked into the letter of the Law, but missed the purpose and benefits of the Law. This resulted in bringing men into bondage and dread of the Law of God.

As you discuss the results of honoring the Lord’s Day, it should be noted that setting Sunday aside to honor God helps us set our priorities spiritually. Also, it is beneficial in the physical and emotional aspects of our lives. Review with the class some specific benefits of honoring the Lord’s Day, such as time to worship and pray, a way of showing our respect for God, and fellowship with other Christians.

8. The religious leaders of Jesus’ time were so desperate to excuse and defend themselves that they resorted to accusing Christ (Mark 3:22). What was their accusation against Him? How did Jesus answer the charge? Mark 3:22-27

They accused Christ of having Beelzebub (a name referring to Satan) and casting out devils through the power of the prince of the devils.

Jesus answered the charge by asking the logical question: “How can Satan cast out Satan?” The answer was obvious: If Satan were to cast out evil, he would be working against himself.

Cover the three rebuttals Jesus used:
1. “If a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand” (Mark 3:24).
2. “If a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand” (Mark 3:25).
3. “If Satan rise up against himself, and be divided, he cannot stand” (Mark 3:26).

9. In Mark 3:28-30, Jesus said that all sins, even blasphemy, can be forgiven. God’s love reaches out to all, even those who curse and revile Him. However, He warned of blasphemy against the Holy Ghost, which is sometimes referred to as “the unpardonable sin.” Because a person can only be saved through the Holy Spirit’s work, the person who rejects the Holy Spirit removes himself from the only One who can lead him to repentance. Who was Jesus talking to in this passage, and why do you suppose He addressed this subject with them? Mark 3:22, 30

Jesus gave this warning to the scribes because they said, “He hath an unclean spirit.”

The key point of this question is to make sure your students understand what “the unpardonable sin” actually is. Sometimes people worry that they have committed the unpardonable sin. However, the very existence of concern shows that they have not rejected the Holy Spirit. The sin of rejecting the Holy Ghost is unforgivable because the one who commits it will never feel any drawing to seek forgiveness.

Encourage all unsaved in the class to seek God while He is dealing with them. The time may come when the Spirit will not do so.

CONCLUSION

Jesus showed Himself to be the Son of God. Many people opposed Him, but He was able to demonstrate His Messiahship by both His words and His miracles.

SOURCE FOR QUESTIONS
Mark 4:1 through 8:38

KEY VERSE FOR MEMORIZATION
“And he saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am? And Peter answereth and saith unto him, Thou art the Christ.” (Mark 8:29)

BACKGROUND
Chapters 4-8 of the Book of Mark focus on proving to believers among the Greek-speaking residents of the Roman Empire that Jesus was indeed the Son of God. A selection of parables is given, although in keeping with Mark’s stress on action, he presented fewer of Jesus’ teachings but proportionately more accounts of His miracles than did the writers of the other Gospels.

Jesus’ credibility was established in these five chapters by accounts of His power over nature, disease and physical disabilities, the antagonism of the Pharisees and scribes, and evil spirits.

In this portion of text, Jesus continued to minister in the region of Galilee and, as recorded in chapter 7, He also reached out into the surrounding areas such as Tyre, Sidon, and Caesarea-Philippi. By ministering in Phoenicia, where Tyre and Sidon were located, Jesus established that His ministry was to all people—first to the Jews, but also to the Gentiles. In addition to performing miracles and teaching in parables, He expanded His outreach by commissioning and sending out the disciples.

The people of Jesus’ own town of Nazareth did not accept Him as God’s Son, nor did the religious leaders. Yet Peter, speaking for the disciples, made the profound declaration that Jesus was the Christ, the promised Messiah from God.

At the end of chapter 8, Jesus gave the disciples His first prediction of His death.

SUGGESTED RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS
1. Mark 4:2 indicates that Jesus taught many things by parables. Given the importance of Christ’s teachings, why do you think He chose to use this method?

Parables both reveal and conceal. In Mark 4:9, Jesus said, “He that hath ears to hear let him hear.” This could be paraphrased, “He that will understand, let him understand.” The mysteries of the Gospel were not intended to be naturally discerned. They are comprehended via the enlightenment of God’s Spirit to those who demonstrate openness to His grace. Thus, those who were sensitive and attentive to spiritual things would perceive the importance of what Christ was teaching, and learn from it. Those who were cynical and of a doubtful mind would miss the spiritual lesson that was presented to them.

Today, the same is true of hearers of the Word. Two people can attend the same Gospel meeting and hear the same message. One may gain spiritual understanding, while the other—perhaps preoccupied, distracted by the cares of life, or consumed with personal interests—may miss it all.

Follow-up discussion could center on ways we can prepare our hearts to take in and benefit from times when the Word of God is presented to us today.

2. What can we learn from Christ’s demeanor and actions in the midst of the sea storm? Mark 4:35-41

Class discussion may bring out some of the following thoughts:

• God has all power; no situation is beyond His power to remedy.
• God cares when we face “storms” in our lives.
• God does not want us to be fearful; faith overcomes fear.

You may wish to ask your students to share examples from their own knowledge or experiences when God stepped in to miraculously overrule a storm in someone’s life.

3. In Mark chapter 5, we are given three accounts of healing. In what ways are these three instances different from each other?

Note to teachers: You might wish to compile a chart with your class based on their responses to this question and the following one.

The three cases were different in that one involved a man, one a child, and the other a woman.

Their circumstances in life were very different. The demoniac was a picture of the wretchedness and brutality of sin, a man possessed by satanic influences, self-destructive, and with impaired mental and emotional faculties. The child was young and innocent, the offspring of a distinguished member of the community who was an elder or religious leader of the synagogue. The woman was a social outcast in that she suffered from an incurable malady which resulted in her being designated by the Law as ceremonially unclean.

The demoniac approached Jesus from out of the tombs. Jairus openly stepped out from the throng and asked for Christ’s help on behalf of his dying daughter. The woman was also in the crowd, but was most likely unknown by many people, and wished to remain anonymous.

When your students have finished noting differences, move on to question four.
4. How are the miracles referred to in the previous question similar?

   In all three cases, there was an urgent need.
   In each case, a request was made for help.
   In all three instances, man’s remedies likely had been tried but the situations still needed the power of God in order to be resolved. The demoniac had been bound with chains but was still uncontrollable. Though Scripture does not specifically state that Jairus had sought the counsel of physicians, we can assume that he had done all he could possibly do. The woman with the issue of blood had spent all her money on doctors’ treatments, but her condition had continued to deteriorate.

   Though their needs were very different, all received amazing and complete healings. The demoniac was restored to his right mind; Jairus’ daughter was raised from death; the woman with the issue of blood felt in her body that she was healed, and “straightway” (or immediately) the work was done.

   In each case, the miracle of healing was a testimony to observers. The demoniac was commanded to stay and testify of Christ, and we read that “all men did marvel” (verse 20). The woman with the issue of blood was summoned by Christ to tell what had happened to her, and she told him “all the truth” (verse 33). When Jairus’ daughter was raised from her deathbed, all men were filled with “great astonishment” (verse 42).

   Responses to questions three and four should lead your class to conclude that it does not matter to God who we are when we approach Him with our needs. It does not matter where we are. It does not matter what the need is. What does matter is that we bring it to Him, recognizing His power to come to our aid.

5. Mark 6:33-44 records another amazing miracle of Jesus’. Far away from the city in a desert place, a crowd of five thousand men, plus women and children, had been listening to Jesus teach. With evening approaching, the people needed food. What solution did the disciples first propose? What lessons can we learn from studying Jesus’ response to the situation?

   They proposed that Jesus send the people away to find their own food.

   Class discussion of the second question could bring out a number of varying lessons to be learned from this account. You may wish to consider the following:

   • Man’s extremities are God’s opportunities. The disciples saw the problem; Jesus saw the potential.
   • While the disciples proposed sending the people away, Jesus’ message is just the opposite: He encourages all to come to Him.
When we face a problem, the first step should not be to measure our resources, but to determine God’s will and trust Him to meet our needs. However meager our resources may be, in God’s hands they will be enough.

Sometimes God requires us to participate in the answer to our prayers. The disciples did what they could by organizing the people into groups, offering what they did have, and distributing what God provided.

Whatever we give to God, He can bless and multiply. We are not the producers; we are merely the distributors.

When God gives, He gives generously. The “fragments that remained” were more than what had been offered in the first place.

6. In Mark 7:1-13, a delegation of Pharisees and scribes confronted Jesus, finding fault with His disciples for eating with “unwashen hands.” Jesus rebuked the accusers by making several charges against them. Note at least three behaviors He condemned.

Verse 6 — They honored God with their lips but not their hearts.

Verses 7-8 — They taught the traditions of men instead of the commandments of God.

Verses 10-12 — They failed to support their parents as commanded by the Law, claiming what should have been given to their parents was “Corban” (something set aside for God).

This might be a good opportunity to discuss with your class the dangers of hypocrisy—pretending to be something you are not. Jesus referred to the Pharisees as “hypocrites” because their supposed worship was false and motivated by the wrong reasons. They wanted to appear righteous in the eyes of men, but had no inward righteousness. By contrast, Jesus taught the necessity and joy of inward purity. He made it clear that we are not pure because of outward acts. Rather, we become pure on the inside through submission to God and His cleansing power. Then our inward purity will naturally be reflected in clean, holy outward behavior.

7. When Jesus warned His disciples of the “leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod” (Mark 8:15), the disciples thought He literally meant bread. What did He really mean, and why did He give this warning?

In the Bible, leaven (yeast) is consistently a symbol of sin, or of false doctrine. Christ was warning His disciples that the teachings of the Pharisees and attitudes of Herod and his followers were wrong. Just as only a small amount of leaven will permeate an entire batch of bread dough and cause it to rise, so the hypocritical teachings, lack of love, and worldliness in these religious and political leaders would... contaminate an entire society. It would even infiltrate the disciples’ own ranks if they were not alert to the danger.

The warning given here is still valid in our day. Sin has phenomenal properties of expansion. As a follow-up question, ask your class what type of “leaven” Satan might try to introduce into our lives today. The point should be made that all believers must be on guard against being contaminated by the leaven of evil, in whatever form it takes.

8. In Mark 8:34-38, Jesus revealed the cost of true discipleship. In verse 34, He said to His followers, “Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.” What are some ways we can fulfill that challenge in our lives?

Class discussion will likely cover a variety of suggestions. To begin with, you may wish to establish that there is only one way to truly be a disciple of Jesus, and that is to follow His admonition. Obedience is vital to a Christian life.

In reference to taking up the cross, it is important to note that Jesus was not speaking of self-inflicted trials, or purposely looking to make our lives more difficult. Nowhere does the Bible teach us that we need to invent our own crosses. This thinking can lead to a works-oriented salvation, and result in a burdensome and lifeless relationship with God.

Rather, taking up the cross means that we must yield to the standard of holiness that God wants to put into our hearts, and mortify the deeds of the body through the Spirit. We grow and become more like Christ as we continually deny ourselves things that can hinder us, in favor of walking in the Spirit of God. God provides grace for this, if we provide willingness.

As we walk with God, we will all have a cross to bear, and when we are willing to take up the challenge of the Gospel and be faithful at any cost, we will find the grace of God drawing us further and deeper into Christ’s fellowship. Rather than sadness and heaviness, we find a joy that surpasses any “sacrifice” we make. We will find that the cross (a calling, challenge in our lives, etc.) which may at one time have seemed too hard to bear, was in fact the doorway to God’s richest blessings.

CONCLUSION

Christ revealed Himself openly while on earth. He also reveals Himself openly to us through His Word and the Holy Spirit. Let us determine to learn and uphold the truths He shows us about Himself!
The Instructions of the Son of God

SOURCE FOR QUESTIONS
Mark 9:1 through 13:37

KEY VERSE FOR MEMORIZATION
“Watch ye therefore: for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cockcrowing, or in the morning: lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping. And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch.” (Mark 13:35-37)

BACKGROUND
A shift of focus is evident in this section of the Book of Mark. The last verses of chapter 8 and the beginning of chapter 9 are considered a midpoint of this book. From here on, Jesus began to interact more with His close followers and less with the multitudes. In about six months, He would face the Cross.

Chapter 9 tells how Jesus was transfigured before Peter, James, and John. Moses (representing the Law) and Elijah (representing the prophets) stood before them. Yet Jesus in shiny, white raiment transcended them both. Jesus was the fulfillment of both the Law and the messages of the prophets, and God’s Voice confirmed that He was the divine Son of God.

With His steps headed toward Jerusalem, Jesus began to intensify His instructions to the disciples to help prepare them for the traumatic days ahead. He taught them about humility, unity, marriage and divorce, positions in the kingdom of God, and faith. Twice He warned them that He would be put to death, but also promised that He would rise again the third day.

Chapter 11 tells of Jesus’ Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem and His cleansing of the Temple. The opposition of the religious leaders was strong, and Jesus gave parables and instruction to them, as well as to His disciples. The stage was being set for the crucial event of all time.

The events recorded in chapter 13 are not in chronological order. Some took place in history, some are present-day happenings, and some are yet to come. The purpose was not to pinpoint the timetable of events, but rather to warn believers to be ready for the terrible times ahead. The text concludes with the theme: “And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch” (Mark 13:37).

SUGGESTED RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS
1. The Transfiguration was a glorious revelation and an important event in the life of Christ. Why do you think Jesus told Peter, James, and John not to tell others about this until after His death? Mark 9:9
It might be interesting to begin by reviewing the facts of the Transfiguration with your class. Then you may want to make a list on the board of your students’ answers to the question. Their thoughts may include:

- This was not the appropriate time to tell because it might have provoked the Jews to prematurely kill Jesus.
- Telling would have caused controversy.
- The disciples did not yet understand the meaning of the Transfiguration. They expected Jesus to overthrow Roman rule and set up His earthly kingdom soon.
- The disciples would understand the significance of the Transfiguration only after the Resurrection. Then they would see the necessity of His sacrifice as the Messiah in order to atone for the sins of mankind.
- Some experiences are too precious to share.

An experience in God’s presence can help sustain believers in times of hardship and persecution. You may ask your class to share special spiritual experiences or heavenly blessings that helped sustain them through later times of trial.

2. In Mark 9:43-45, Jesus gave a stern warning about the consequence of allowing sin into one’s life. He told us to cut off our hand, our foot, or to pluck out our eye if they would cause us to sin. How should we apply this concept?

   This warning is to be applied figuratively. The point is to resist temptation and avoid sin at all cost because the consequences are eternal. We will need to use discipline to avoid sin. We may need to guard against friendships that hinder us. We must avoid worldly environments, worldly entertainment, some media, certain means of communication, and any other thing that causes us to be tempted to sin.

3. Jesus instructed His disciples to “have salt in yourselves” (Mark 9:50). Salt has several properties, including enhancing flavor, purifying, and preserving food. How can each of these attributes of salt be exemplified in our Christian lives?

   Make three columns on the board, and put these headings above the columns: Flavor, Purify, Preserve. Under each heading write specific suggestions offered by your students. For example, our lives should attract or convict others by our Christian “flavor” or uniqueness. We can do our part to make the world around us a cleaner and purer environment in the spiritual sense. We can hold to and preserve the Gospel by upholding Biblical doctrines. We can bring into remembrance the covenant we made with God when we were saved and keep it up-to-date.

4. In Mark 10:17-22, the rich young ruler said he had observed all the commandments that Jesus had rehearsed. Why do you think Jesus omitted the first commandment about loving the Lord with all one’s heart, soul, mind, and strength when He was talking with this young man?

Perhaps Jesus was attempting to help the rich young ruler see his sin problem—he loved his money more than God. Ask your class how we can be sure that we love the Lord more than anyone or anything else. Their responses might include renewing our consecrations regularly, making sure that doing God’s will is more important to us than pleasing ourselves, quickly obeying the prompts of the Holy Spirit, and counting our blessings.

5. Why was Jesus’ Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem, as recorded in Mark 11:1-10, significant?

This was the first time Jesus publicly revealed that He was the Messiah, and the only time He allowed such public honor to be given to Him. Because it was Passover time, Jerusalem was crowded, and Messianic anticipation was high. Jesus fulfilled the prophecy of Zechariah 9:9 by riding a donkey. Coming on a horse or in a chariot would have indicated a warring king, but coming on a donkey was a sign of royalty and of peace. Jesus allowed the crowds to proclaim “Hosanna!” and to associate Him with David’s kingdom.

6. One of the scribes asked Jesus which of the Ten Commandments was most important. Jesus summarized the ten into first loving God, and second, loving others (Mark 12:28-31). What are ways we can put the second commandment into practice?

Bring out that we must build on a foundation of the first commandment. Explore the difference between a mental acceptance of Christ’s teachings, and a genuine experience of salvation.

Once we have been converted, and truly love the Lord with all our heart, soul, mind, and strength, we should cultivate a heart of love by giving to the destitute, reaching out to the sad and lonely, and being sensitive to any kind of needs we see around us, whether they be physical, emotional, or spiritual.

You may discuss with your class that serving and loving others may take our time, resources, and/or energy. It may mean giving up some activity or item in preference to someone else. In other words, it may cost us something! You might wish to have the class give practical examples of what loving and serving others may be.

7. Jesus called the disciples’ attention to the poor widow who cast two mites into the Temple treasury, as opposed to those who cast in great wealth (Mark 12:41-44). What lessons can we learn from this simple account?

This widow gave her all! A mite was the smallest coin and therefore the minimal contribution possible.
Jesus’ point was not the value of the coins, but rather that the woman gave all she had.

Class discussion should bring out several lessons.

• God does not condemn the rich who contribute much out of the generosity of their hearts.
• The attitude of giving is important; giving for show will earn no eternal reward.
• This widow gave sacrificially. Proportion may be more important than quantity, and God may look more at what we hold back than the amount we give.
• Our giving should be evidence of our love for God and faith in Him.

Ask your students what we can give to God besides money. They may mention time, talents, and energy. Sometimes we can give by a smile, a word, or a prayer.

8. In Mark 13:32-37, Jesus warned His listeners of things that would occur at the end time. He repeatedly urged them to be ready, to watch and pray, and then concluded it all by saying, “What I say unto you I say unto all, Watch.” What are some ways we can “watch” in order to be ready for Jesus’ coming?

Your class may bring out the following thoughts:

• We must keep the Lord close in our minds at all times.
• We must be alert, and always choose what we know to be right in each decision we make.
• We must pray always, and seek for our deeper experiences and a closer walk with God.
• We must study His Word.
• We need to gather for worship and fellowship with other believers, even more as the day of Jesus’ coming draws near.
• We need to love God with all our hearts, and give Him thanksgiving and praise.

CONCLUSION

After Jesus gave instruction concerning the Kingdom of God, He concluded by warning His listeners to be ready for His next coming, and to “Watch.”

KEY VERSE FOR MEMORIZATION
“And when the centurion, which stood over against him, saw that he so cried out, and gave up the ghost, he said, Truly this man was the Son of God.” (Mark 15:39)

BACKGROUND
The final chapters of Mark contain the account of the most crucial event of all time: Jesus’ ultimate deed of servanthood. Chapters 14 and 15 are sometimes called the “passion narrative,” and offer Mark’s account of the events that were preliminary to Jesus’ death, His Crucifixion, and details regarding His burial. Chapter 16 gives the Resurrection story.

Not one of the events that transpired was an accident, nor was Jesus a victim. The plotting of the religious leaders, the betrayal by Judas, the trials, the mocking and physical abuse, and the agony of the Cross were all foretold by the prophets. Jesus willingly submitted Himself and was obedient to His Father’s plan, thereby making it possible for all people to be delivered from sin and death.

The city of Jerusalem was exceedingly crowded during this final week before the Crucifixion, because Passover had to be observed there. Jesus’ nights during this time were spent either on the Mount of Olives, where the Garden of Gethsemane was located, or in Bethany, a city about two miles from Jerusalem on the east side of the Mount of Olives.

After Jesus’ betrayal by Judas, arrest, and the mockery of a trial, Mark tells how Jesus was led away to be crucified. Crucifixion was an agonizing and degrading form of punishment used by the Roman government. Jesus died about 3:00 p.m. on Friday, and was buried quickly before the Sabbath began at 6:00 p.m.

On Sunday morning, the angel inside the tomb declared the message that contains hope for every person: “He is risen.” Because Jesus conquered death, every soul has the opportunity to have eternal life.

SUGGESTED RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS
1. The word Messiah means “Anointed One.” Given this, why were some of those present at the home of Simon the leper indignant when Mary anointed Jesus? Mark 14:4-5

   Their perspective was that the costly ointment could have been sold and the proceeds used to help... the poor. Point out to your class that while Mark says “some” had indignation, John specifically identifies Judas (see John 12:4-5). Judas’ indignation over this act of worship was likely related to greed, rather than any altruistic motive.

Three hundred pence was the equivalent of three hundred days’ wages at that time—a tremendous sum. However, those who saw waste instead of love in Mary’s gift to Jesus did not recognize that love puts no price tag on its methods of expression. This was exemplified by God when He gave His only Son to die on the Cross as an expression of His infinite love for mankind.

2. Why do you think Jesus made the comment, “Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, this also that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her”? Mark 14:9

Jesus praised Mary for her actions. Her values were from her heart: personal and spiritual. She could not stop Jesus’ death, but she could anoint Him for His burial. Though she was motivated by her love for Him, and not for personal fame, Jesus said her action would always be remembered.

Discussion may lead to the various ways our acts of love for Christ someday may be remembered long after we leave this earth. We need to ask ourselves: Are our actions motivated by our love for Him or for desire of recognition? How are we building spiritual memorials now that will last for eternity?

3. What instructions did Jesus give two of His disciples about finding the place where they would spend the Passover? (Mark 14:13-15) What are the benefits of simply obeying God’s instructions?

Peter and John (identified in Luke 22:8) were told to go into the city and look for a man carrying water, and follow the man to his destination. (You may wish to explain that water carrying was generally a woman’s work, so a man carrying a water pitcher would have been quite noticeable. This made it easy for the disciples to recognize the man who would lead them to the upper room.) Peter and John were then to inquire of the homeowner regarding provisions for the Passover. He would show them a large upper room, furnished and prepared for the Passover. Peter and John acted in obedience to Jesus’ instructions, and everything happened just as Jesus had said it would.

In response to the second question, your students may bring up such thoughts as: we will have peace with God, we will enjoy the blessings that follow obedience, we will enjoy unhindered communication with God, we will have a conscience void of offence, and eventually we will enjoy eternity with God.

4. In Mark 14:22-25, during the Passover observance with His disciples, Jesus instituted the ordinance we know today as the “Lord’s Supper.” What did the broken bread and “fruit of the vine” symbolize? Why is this observance significant to us?

The broken bread symbolized Jesus’ broken body. The fruit of the vine was a picture of Jesus’ Blood being “poured out for many.”

This observance is significant to us because it illustrates the fact that Jesus, the spotless Lamb of God, offered Himself as a sacrifice. His body was broken and His Blood was shed that we might come to God through Him, in full confidence that He will hear us and save us from our sins.

This could be an opportunity to encourage your class to participate in the ordinance services if they are saved and living a victorious Christian life. Many have received wonderful blessings, healings, and spiritual experiences as they looked back during this time of memorial to the death of Jesus at Calvary. You may wish to refer to 1 Corinthians 11:23-29 for further instruction on the significance of the Lord’s Supper.

5. During Jesus’ trial, why do you think He refused to answer Pilate’s questions? (Mark 15:5) What can we learn from Jesus’ example here?

Class discussion may bring out such thoughts as:

• Jesus remained silent as a fulfillment of Scripture. (See Isaiah 53:7.)
• He did not need to defend Himself; He had committed no crime.
• It would have been futile to answer Pilate. Jesus’ trial was pure mockery and a façade. Also, Jesus knew His time had come to give His life for our sins. His work on earth was done, and He had no reason to prolong the trial or try to save Himself.

In response to the second question, your class should reach the conclusion that we can “speak” through our lives, even without words. They may also bring up that it is not always necessary to defend ourselves or have the last word in a situation.

6. We read in Mark 15:37 that Jesus “gave up the ghost.” Why did Jesus have to die?

Jesus had to die in order to pay the penalty for the sins of mankind. This question will provide you with a good opportunity to review the fact that the descendants of Adam and Eve—every person born into this world—inherited their sinful nature. Instead of coming into the world desiring to do right, all are born with an inclination toward evil, which leads to sinful actions. Acts of sin may be dramatic or subtle, but they always separate the sinner from God, and the penalty is death.

Thankfully, that is not the end of the story. Because of God’s great love for His creation, He sent His only Son, Jesus Christ, to this world to live as a man and die on the Cross in the place of sinful man. Jesus paid the penalty for our sins. Because of His death, if we follow the steps God has laid out, we can regain the connection that was lost in the Garden. Through a spiritual rebirth, the inner sense of separation and emptiness vanishes in a moment of time, and we are forgiven of our sins and are at peace with God.

7. In Mark 16:6, the message to the women who came to the sepulcher was, “He is risen.” Why is that message so important to us today?

The Resurrection of Christ is fundamentally important to the Christian faith for many reasons:

1. Jesus kept His promise to rise from the dead, so we in turn can believe the rest of His promises.

2. The Resurrection means the Ruler of God’s eternal Kingdom will be the living Christ. It is not just some idea, dream, or theory.

3. Jesus’ Resurrection gives us the hope that we will be resurrected too, and we will be taken up to forever be with Him when He returns for His saints.

4. The power of God to raise Jesus from the dead can also raise us from being spiritually dead, and give us new life both morally and spiritually.

5. The Resurrection of Jesus gives evidence that believers can present to a lost world. We do not merely tell of a good man or a good teacher who died and is buried somewhere in a grave. Jesus is the only spiritual leader to ever rise from the dead. We tell about a risen Savior who can change lives today!

CONCLUSION

The death and Resurrection of Christ was not just an event that occurred over two thousand years ago. The power of the Cross and of His Resurrection are real today and will give new life and hope to the one who will totally surrender, take up his cross, and follow Christ.

“Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment.” (1 Corinthians 1:10)

BACKGROUND

The city of Corinth was one of the most prosperous Greek cities in Paul’s time. In this wicked society, Paul and his contemporaries planted a church. While there were some Jewish believers in the church, it was made up mostly of Gentiles with a pagan background.

The Apostle Paul had labored diligently in the city of Corinth, but after his departure, many problems surfaced, and division spread in the church. Soon, reports of these problems came to Paul, and a delegation of Corinthians brought a letter from the church requesting his guidance on a number of issues. Paul’s first letter, comprised of basic instructions to the church, was a response to those questions.

Paul was writing to a church in which some members were not doing as well as others spiritually. Possibly, some in attendance had not yet been converted. Some were saved but not yet sanctified. Others were sanctified but not yet filled with the Holy Ghost. Others had all three foundational spiritual experiences, yet were unwise in their use of the Spirit-endowed gifts they possessed. Paul’s goal was to point all of them to higher ground. Today, too, we have the same goal every time we hold a church service. Some comments may be directed to sinners, but that does not mean everyone in the meeting is a sinner. The spiritual level of those in the audience is varied, and so it was in the Corinthian church.

Paul began his epistle by addressing the need for unity and exhorting those in the church to resolve their differences. He reminded his readers that the Cross of Jesus Christ must be the foundation of His Church, and he asked them, “Is Christ divided?” He passionately encouraged the Corinthians to reconcile—to lay aside their selfish desires and personal preferences, and “grow up” in the faith.

Satan, the enemy of the Church, has not disappeared. He still would like to cause divisions within the church body. Like the Corinthians, we are called to live in peace with other believers. As Paul knew, unity is critical in a successfully functioning church!
1. What was the initial point of dissension in the Corinthian church that Paul addressed in his letter? (1 Corinthians 1:12)

   Factions in the church were supporting different leaders and styles of worship. Each group thought its leader was superior, its teaching most profound, and its members most distinguished.

2. In order to live in harmony with other believers, certain behaviors are required. What three things did Paul admonish the Corinthians to do in order to maintain oneness? (1 Corinthians 1:10) How can we be sure that we have an attitude of unity toward fellow Christians?

   Believers were admonished to “speak the same thing,” to allow for “no divisions” between them, and to “be perfectly joined together” in the same mind and judgment. Bring out to your class that the word division comes from the word schisma, meaning “to separate, to rip, to tear, to split.” In contrast, the word translated perfectly joined was also sometimes used to mean “knitting together fractured bones.” Discussion should bring out that unity does not mean every individual has the same personal tastes, perspectives, and preferences. It is possible to differ without being divisive. Paul wanted the Corinthians to have an attitude of flexibility and oneness, rather than each individual doing what was right in his own eyes. Ask: If there are areas in our lives that might cause disunity, how should these areas be addressed?

3. What does it mean to have “the mind of Christ,” as opposed to worldly wisdom? (1 Corinthians 2:16) How will possessing the mind of Christ affect unity within the church?

   Having the “mind of Christ” is following the teachings of the Lord. It is seeing things as God sees them, valuing what He values, and hating what He hates. Worldly wisdom can be obtained through investigation, research, or experience, but the Bible is our resource for knowing God’s perspective. While no one can fully comprehend God, believers have insight into His nature, plans, thoughts, and actions through Scripture. When believers have the mind of Christ, unity will be a natural result, because as Paul established in chapter 1 verse 13, Christ is not divided.

4. At the beginning of chapter 3, Paul refers to the Corinthian believers as “babes” in their spiritual lives. How would you define a “babe” in Christ? How does a “babe” differ from one who is spiritually mature?

   Spiritual infants can only “drink milk” (understand the simple, elementary truths of the Gospel). In contrast, a spiritually mature person is able to accept and discern the things that come from the Spirit of God. Paul identifies a mature Christian as one who can “eat solid food” (understand the deeper truths of the Gospel). Bring out to your class the importance of new converts continuing to grow in their spiritual lives. Even after we are saved, sanctified, and baptized with the Holy Spirit, we still have lessons to learn, and godly attributes to develop.

5. Paul said he could not address some of those who attended the church in Corinth as spiritual people because they were still carnal. How was their carnality manifested? (1 Corinthians 3:3-4)

The envy, strife, and divisions among some in the Corinthian church were manifestations of carnality. Bring out to your class that “carnality” refers to the carnal or Adamic nature of man. When a person prays through to salvation, he receives the assurance that his sins have been forgiven and the Lord will not hold them against him any longer. He has been pardoned: absolved from the wrongdoing in his past. Still, there remains in him that carnal nature from which those deeds sprang in the first place. That is why sanctification is needed. Salvation deals with the acts and guilt of committed sins, while sanctification deals with the nature of sin, the inward tendency inherited from Adam.

6. In 1 Corinthians 3:23, Paul says that believers “are Christ’s.” What does that imply regarding our actions and attitudes as they relate to the maturing process?

The key thought behind this question is that if we belong to Him, we should be like Him. Ask your students to list the qualities of God that will be reflected in our lives if we are “Christ’s.” For example, we know that God is love, so if we are “Christ’s,” love will be the motivating factor behind all of our actions and attitudes. We will exemplify a compassionate, caring behavior to all, and this will preclude anything that would contribute to division in the church.

A follow-up point could be made that Paul obviously saw a need for the Corinthians to have further instruction in this matter. The fact is, wherever we are spiritually, we need to be open to instruction.

7. According to 1 Corinthians 4:12-13, Paul and the other Apostles had suffered deeply at the hands of some individuals. Identify three forms of negative treatment that they had received. How did the Apostles choose to react? What can this teach us about how to deal with those who oppose us?

Being reviled, they blessed. Being persecuted, they suffered [allowed] it. Being defamed, they entertained. Ask your class to describe a natural response to being reviled, persecuted, and defamed. Lead them in a discussion of how the Apostles’ reaction helped to build unity rather than tear it down. Conclude this question by drawing some analogies to current-day situations in which we can exercise the same heart as the Apostles.
CONCLUSION

There is a big difference between knowing the Gospel and living the Gospel, and part of “living it” is getting along in peace and love with our fellow believers. Let us do our part to build unity in the Body of Christ!

“For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God’s.”
(1 Corinthians 6:20)

BACKGROUND
Chapter 5 begins the second major division of the epistle. In these chapters, Paul was writing to this group of believers to address a variety of issues that had arisen and were severely affecting the unity of the church. Basically, the Christian faith was under attack in Corinth.

Although the Corinthian converts had broken from idolatry and stepped out of the corruption of their society to form a local church, it was imperative for them to realize that the Gospel does not tolerate compromise. There must be a clean break with the old sinful lifestyle, and it was at this point the Corinthian believers had faltered.

In addition, the Corinthians needed to understand the supreme importance of love in order to build and preserve unity among their members. Followers of Christ cannot be in unity if they are in conflict with one another, and this was a primary issue in the church at Corinth.

Non-believers watched the Early Church, much as they do today, to see if Christians lived the message they preached. Paul desired for the Corinthian church to grow spiritually and mature into the Spirit-led believers he knew they could be. How could a church reach out to those in need of the Gospel when they are bickering from within? So many issues were unresolved in Corinth that the Holy Spirit was hindered. When hearts of believers are in unity with the Holy Spirit, the Spirit is able to move on their behalf, convicting sinners, healing the sick in body and spirit, and moving believers to a closer walk with God.

As in any church, those at Corinth were in different stages of growth. Many were truly “babes in Christ.” Others were slow to abandon their pagan ways. Because of this, they did not know the answers to questions that arose and they needed guidance. Paul offered that guidance — a sort of “how to” manual; gentle when appropriate, but in many cases up front and to the point. Some of the key issues needing to be addressed included: fornication, marriage, discipline within the church, handling differences with fellow believers, caring for those who were weaker in the faith, eating food that had been offered to idols, and proper conduct at the Lord’s Supper.

The Gospel message is plain and simple. Paul encouraged the church to pursue a bond of unity with this being the focus.

SUGGESTED RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS

1. Leaven was symbolic of sin, and Paul wrote that “a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump.” Why should a church be diligent in dealing with sin? (1 Corinthians 5:6-7) How can we keep the sinful practices of our culture from creeping into our lives and our church?

   If even a small amount of sin is allowed in the church, it will cause division and confusion. Just as a little yeast eventually causes the entire mass of dough to rise, a small amount of sin can cause an entire church to be jeopardized spiritually. In chapter 5, Paul instructed the church in Corinth to get rid of all the “leaven.” Applying this to our lives and to our church today, we see that we cannot tolerate sin, even in small doses.

2. What two points did Paul make regarding settling disputes among Christians? (1 Corinthians 6)

   Paul’s two points were:
   • Do not take differences between brothers in Christ to an unbeliever for settlement.
   • Relinquish your personal rights in order to avoid contention.

   Matthew 18:15 indicates that regardless of whether the problem was an unintentional error or something done flagrantly, the first step is to go to the brother or sister and discuss it in private. Discuss with your class why and how such a practice will build unity.

3. What Bible doctrine does chapter 7 teach?

   Marriage is for life. In verses 10-11, Paul clearly states that if a woman departs from her husband, “let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband.” Later, verses 39-40 explain that the marriage vows endure until death, and only then can one remarry. Discuss how ignoring this one Bible doctrine can diminish the unity of a family as well as the unity of a church body.

4. In what way should we apply Paul’s advice concerning stronger and weaker brothers to our lives? (1 Corinthians 8:12-13)

   1 Corinthians 8:12 tells us that if we sin against a weaker brother, wounding his conscience, we are sinning against Christ. Freedom does not bring license to disregard others; in all things we are to act in love, preferring our brother. Ask your class for examples of situations when someone would refrain from doing something out of concern that it might offend a brother or sister.
5. To what two athletic events did Paul compare the Christian walk? (1 Corinthians 9:24-26) What disciplines does an athlete have that can be applied to our Christian walk?

A form of boxing and running a foot race. Have your students share their thoughts about the discipline needed for a Christian life. How do we “train” as Christians? Possible answers include: prayer, Bible study, and attending church.

6. Name the transgressions of the Children of Israel that Paul mentioned in 1 Corinthians 10. Why is it important to remember lessons from the past?

Some of the transgressions of the Children of Israel were idolatry (verse 7), fornication (verse 8), tempting Christ (verse 9), and murmuring (verse 10). Paul said these are listed as examples. Discuss why it is important to remember lessons from the past, bringing out that those who fail to understand, learn from, and remember the lessons of the past might well repeat the same actions. To illustrate the importance of remembering, ask students to share personal lessons they have learned that they hope their children will not have to learn from personal experience.

7. What are some practical steps that we can take to maintain unity with our fellow believers?

Steps brought out may include: treat each other with love and consideration; move quickly to resolve any differences between brothers; refrain from negative speaking or complaining about others; do nothing to cause others to falter in their Christian walks.

CONCLUSION

Paul had a desire for the church at Corinth to have unity with the Spirit of God. We should have that same desire for our church today, and be taking steps to ensure that we are building the unity of the Body of Christ, not tearing it down.
Results of Unity

KEY VERSE FOR MEMORIZATION
“For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body: so also is Christ.” (1 Corinthians 12:12)

BACKGROUND
Instead of building up and unifying the Corinthian church, a misconception regarding spiritual gifts was dividing it. This misconception revolved around some members thinking they were more “spiritual” than others because of their gifts.

In chapter 12, verses 1-11, Paul described many spiritual gifts given by God. He then explained how essential each gift was in unifying the Body of Christ, the Church. Imagery of the human body was common in the ancient world, although Paul used it in a special way. He stressed both sides of the picture — first, the oneness of the body, and second, its diversity. Paul compared the necessity of each gift in the Church to the necessity of each part in the body; each part has its own function and all must work together for the good of the whole.

Chapter 13 reveals the greatest of God’s gifts, which is charity (love). In morally corrupt Corinth, the word love had little meaning. Four Greek words which translate into the English word “love” are:

1) Agape — selfless, sacrificial love that acts in conformity to the character and nature of God.
2) Phileo — endearing love that cherishes, such as the husband/wife relationship, the love of a brother/sister, or dearest friend.
3) Eros — passionate or physical love.
4) Storge — affectionate love, such as the loyalty of an employee to his employer.

Of the four, 1 Corinthians 13 describes agape love. Translators had no proper word to use when attempting to convey the true meaning of Christian love. Hence, in this chapter, the English word chosen to represent agape love was “charity,” which is related to “cherish.”

The misuse of the gift of speaking in tongues by some individuals was also a concern in the Corinthian church because it had caused disorder in worship. Paul instructed that speaking in tongues was a legitimate gift from the Holy Spirit, but should not be used as a sign of spiritual superiority. Rather, it should be a means to spiritual unity.
Chapter 14, verses 34-35, address the practices of women in the church. It is clear from chapters 12 through 14 that women had spiritual gifts and were encouraged to exercise them in the Body of Christ. However, in the Corinthian culture, women were not allowed to confront men in public. Apparently, some of the women who had become Christians thought their Christian freedom gave them the right to question men in public worship. This was causing division in the church. In addition, women of that day did not receive formal religious education, as did the men. Paul was asking the women not to flaunt their Christian freedom during the worship service. He did this to promote unity, not to teach about a woman’s role in the church.

In Chapter 15, Paul reviewed the subject of resurrection. Corinth was a Greek city. Greeks generally believed in immortality of the soul, but not physical resurrection of the body. Christianity, in contrast, teaches that the body and soul will be united after resurrection. Because the church at Corinth was in the heart of Greek culture, Paul addressed this point of confusion and disbelief among its members. He lovingly but fervently emphasized to the Corinthian believers, the importance of their belief in physical resurrection, giving detailed examples of what Christians’ resurrected bodies will be like.

At the conclusion of this epistle, Paul offered brief comments about his travel plans and the plans of his co-workers, Timothy and Apollos, and then made his closing remarks. He directed the Corinthian believers to be alert to spiritual dangers, to remain true to the Lord, to behave maturely, to be strong, and to do all things with kindness and love.

SUGGESTED RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS

1. What does 1 Corinthians 12:4-6 reveal about the unity and diversity of spiritual gifts? Consider what unique talents God has given you. How might they be used to benefit the Body of Christ?

   Each gift is unique, but all the diverse gifts are from one Giver: God. Each gift is specially formed to fill a place in the Body of Christ, and if even one person were missing, the Body would be incomplete. Point out the fact that God himself is “Trinity in Unity.” Mention the various functions of ministers, Sunday school teachers, musicians, janitors, gardeners, cooks, altar workers, etc. Ask students to consider what would happen if we did not have people to fulfill these positions. Who would preach God’s Word? Who would teach Sunday school students? Who would clean the church? When each member performs his or her God-appointed duty, the church will be in unity, working together for the good of the Gospel.

2. What are the sixteen traits of charity as described by Paul in 1 Corinthians 13:4-8?

NOTES
It is interesting that the first two traits of charity describe the patient kindness of charity. The next eight describe selfish qualities absent from charity and revolve around self-centeredness rather than selflessness. The final six describe the courage and character of charity.

• Charity “suffereth long” (13:4) –
  Love is patient.
• Charity “is kind” (13:4) –
  Love is courteous and helpful, and actively engaged in doing good to others.
• Charity “envieth not” (13:4) –
  Love does not begrudge others their earthly goods, positions, or spiritual gifts.
• Charity “vaunteth not itself” (13:4) –
  Love is unassuming and never boastful.
• Charity “is not puffed up” (13:4) –
  Love does not assume an air of superiority.
• Charity “doth not behave itself unseemingly” (13:5) – Love is tactful and polite.
• Charity “seeketh not her own” (13:5) –
  Love is more interested in others' welfare than in personal gain.
• Charity “is not easily provoked” (13:5) –
  Love is good-natured and without temper.
• Charity “thinketh no evil” (13:5) –
  Love forgives and forgets slights and imagined slights.
• Charity “rejoiceth not in iniquity” (13:5) –
  Love is grieved or saddened by sin.
• Charity “rejoiceth in truth” (13:6) –
  Love appreciates and affirms that which is right.
• Charity “beareth all things” (13:7) –
  Love holds up, no matter what manner of trial appears.
• Charity “believeth all things” (13:7) –
  Love eagerly trusts and creates a spirit of trust by ascribing the best motives to others.
• Charity “hopeth all things” (13:7) –
  Love expects good to triumph.
• Charity “endureth all things” (13:7) –
  Love remains true in the most adverse circumstances, facing every assault of the enemy with courage and a conquering spirit.
• Charity “never faileth” (13:8) –
  Love cannot lose a battle.

3. Why did Paul encourage the Corinthians to esteem charity more than the gifts listed in chapter 12?
   (1 Corinthians 13:8)

   The gifts the Corinthians valued were only temporal. They were not to esteem such gifts more than charity, which is eternal.
4. Give an example of a time when you needed to exercise one of the traits of charity named by Paul in 1 Corinthians 13:4-7.

Class input.

5. Why is charity the ultimate solution to the problems at Corinth and in any other church?

Love is what makes spiritual gifts useful. Great faith, acts of dedication or sacrifice, and miracle-working power produce very little without love. Love is the greatest of human qualities, and although there are many different spiritual gifts, love is available to everyone. Love is an attribute of God himself, and involves unselfishly giving of oneself to others. Love leaves no foothold for resentment.

Faith is the foundation and content of God’s message, hope is the attitude and focus, and love is the action. When faith and hope are in line, people are free to love completely because they understand how God loves. See 1 Corinthians 13:13.

6. In 1 Corinthians 14:3, what does Paul define as the three purposes of prophesying?

Prophecy provides edification, exhortation, and comfort (1 Corinthians 14:3). Edification is defined as “instruction or enlightenment.” The definition of exhortation is “something that urges or warns” or “giving of urgent advice.” Comfort is defined as “to provide relief,” or “to cheer someone.”

7. What are the general principles that govern church services? (1 Corinthians 14:26,40)

All things should be done for the edification of the church and with decency and order. Those involved in a church service must have love as their chief motivation when giving useful words or help that would strengthen the faith of other believers. Services without order or direction cause confusion among believers.

8. What do you suppose is meant by the phrase, “They have addicted themselves to the ministry of the saints”? (1 Corinthians 16:15) What might this have to do with unity?

Members of the household of Stephanas had apparently given themselves wholeheartedly to arranging and caring for the needs of the saints. When we put others’ needs ahead of our own, and dedicate ourselves to helpful and compassionate care of others, we will certainly be strengthening the bonds between believers and building up the unity of the church.

CONCLUSION

We each have a part to contribute to the health of the Body of Christ. When each member in the Body fosters love that is patient, kind, humble, generous, and everlasting, the unity among believers will increase. How thankful we are that we can look to Jesus Christ as the perfect example of this perfect love.
Paul's Second Letter to the Corinthians

2 Corinthians 1:1 through 13:14

KEY VERSE FOR MEMORIZATION
“For out of much affliction and anguish of heart I wrote unto you with many tears; not that ye should be grieved, but that ye might know the love which I have more abundantly unto you.” (2 Corinthians 2:4)

BACKGROUND
The church at Corinth was founded by Paul on his second missionary journey (see Acts 18:1-11). He ministered to this assembly for about a year and a half, but after his departure, problems emerged in the infant congregation. The church at Corinth was weak and its members struggled with their Christian faith and lifestyle. They were surrounded by idolatry and immorality, and false teachers were a constant threat. Paul wrote 1 Corinthians from Ephesus during his third missionary journey, in order to deal with moral problems in the church and to answer specific questions on several issues. That letter, however, did not produce the desired results.

Paul made a brief and painful visit to Corinth to confront some who were creating division in the church. Upon his return to Ephesus, Paul was so distressed that he wrote a severe letter (which is now lost) to the assembly, urging discipline for those who had risen up in arrogant defiance of Paul. This letter was delivered by his associate Titus.

It was with relief that Paul, while on his third missionary journey, received the report from Titus that the majority of the Corinthians had been genuinely grieved by his letter. Yet, there were still issues to deal with. The challenges against Paul’s apostolic authority had increased and attempts were being made to discredit him. Paul wrote the Book of 2 Corinthians to express his relief at hearing Titus’ message, but also to set forth his credentials as a true Apostle of Jesus Christ and to denounce those who were attacking his integrity.

The Book of 2 Corinthians is the least methodical and most personal of Paul’s epistles. One of the key words in this letter is comfort, or encouragement. The Greek translation of this word means “called to one’s side to help.” The verb form, “to comfort,” is used eighteen times in this letter, and the noun form, eleven times. In spite of all the trials Paul had experienced and was still experiencing with this church, he was able by God’s grace to write a letter threaded through with encouragement.
1. What was Paul’s secret for victory in the midst of tribulations? (2 Corinthians 1:3-5) What truths are revealed about God in these verses?

Paul’s secret for victory was to experience the comfort of God. The truths revealed about God are: He is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, He is merciful and His character is to show compassion, and as “the God of all comfort,” His consolations meet every need.

Your students may enjoy sharing specific examples of times when God’s comfort has met a personal need for them. The point should be made that when God comforts us, our experience becomes a rich resource for ministering to others. England-born pastor and theologian John Henry Jowett (1864 – 1923) once said, “God does not comfort us to make us comfortable, but to make us comforters.”

2. In 2 Corinthians 2:5-11, Paul began to address the specific problems that were troubling the Corinthian church. Seemingly, an individual in the assembly had undergone discipline by the Church for his sinful actions, and had subsequently repented. How did Paul instruct the Corinthians to treat this individual, and what godly principle is brought out through Paul’s instructions?

Paul instructed the Corinthians to accept once again the repentant sinner. (This offender is generally thought to have been the man Paul referred to in 1 Corinthians 5:1-5.) While sin does have consequences, the saints were to forgive and comfort the wrong-doer, and to reaffirm their love for him. The principle brought out is that of forgiveness.

Discuss the fact that church discipline, like proper parental discipline, is designed to correct and bring about an alteration in behavior. The goal should always be to restore, not to damage or destroy. Paul was leading these believers to understand that there is a time to confront, but there is also a time to comfort and encourage.

3. Legalists who had already created problems in Antioch and Jerusalem (see Acts 15) had infiltrated the believers in Corinth and persuaded some to live by the Law of Moses. Paul refuted these false teachings by contrasting the New Covenant ministry to the Old Covenant Law. Name at least three differences between the old Law and the New Covenant.

2 Corinthians 3:3-18

A number of points could be brought out based on this portion of text.

• The Law was graven in stone; the New Covenant is written in the heart (verse 3).

• The Law revealed sin, which resulted in death; the Spirit changes the heart, which results in life (verse 6).
• The glory of the Law is gone—the Temple, the priesthood, the ceremonies—but the glory of God’s grace grows more and more glorious (verses 7-8).

• The rituals and ceremonies of the Law represented bondage; under the New Covenant, “where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty” (verse 17).

4. We all face problems in our Christian lives. Paul had learned that the secret of endurance was inner strength from the Holy Spirit. He said, “Our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory” (2 Corinthians 4:17). What are some ways that affliction can bring about “glory” or blessing in our lives?

   Discussion could bring out a variety of answers. These may include: We learn through affliction that God gives us strength and grace according to our daily needs. The believer can rejoice that he has a life within, which increases in vitality with every passing day. Affliction may cause us to ponder Heaven and our eternal reward. Trials give us an opportunity to prove God in new ways. Affliction often opens a door of compassionate ministry toward others who also suffer. You may want to ask a student to share a personal testimony.

5. Paul appealed to the Corinthians to separate themselves for God, and not to form binding relationships with nonbelievers. What three arguments did he present to try to convince these believers that they must separate from that which is contrary to the will of God? 2 Corinthians 6:14-18

   The three points could be summarized as follows: (1) The nature of the believer determines his associations (verses 14-16). The Christian possesses a divine nature and should want to associate himself only with that which pleases the Lord. When we try to walk with the world and with the Lord at the same time, we break our spiritual fellowship with God. (2) Separation from unbelievers is a command from God (verse 17). “Come out” implies a definite act on one’s part. Separation is a positive act of dedication to God. We must separate from sin and unto God. (3) God will bless those who separate themselves from the world of sin (verse 18). He longs to receive us in love and treat us as His precious sons and daughters.

   Discussion should bring out that as long as we live in the world, there will be a necessary amount of association with unbelievers on some level. However, when God has transformed a person through salvation, there should be an inward caution regarding a willful, close alliance with those who are not Christians. There is danger in choosing to put ourselves in positions where our relationships could cause us to compromise our principles.
6. Chapters 8 and 9 deal primarily with benevolent giving. Paul saw the members of the Gentile congregation as debtors to the Jews for sharing the Gospel of Jesus Christ with them, and he encouraged the Corinthians to help the Jerusalem Christians financially in their time of need. What principles regarding giving did he establish?

Some responses could be: Unselfish giving is commended. We want to give because Jesus gave to us. We give willingly, according to what we have—a person with much should give much; a person with little should give what is possible. When we give in faith, we receive God’s spiritual blessings in our lives. What we do or give comes from our desire to serve and honor God. Giving to our brothers and sisters in need will glorify God. We should give cheerfully. The inner attitude is more important to God than the outward gift.

7. Certain members of the Corinthian church had resorted to discrediting Paul, while boasting of their own qualifications. Paul boldly rejected the idea that he was inferior to these men, who claimed divine authority but whose claims were false. He intentionally mimicked them by providing details of his own “résumé,” which was far superior in the Gospel. What personal experiences did Paul list that proved his authority?

2 Corinthians 11:23-33

Compile a list with your class. It will include: imprisonment, severe beatings, being shipwrecked, being attacked by robbers, enduring dangers from false brothers, sleeplessness, hunger, thirst, cold, nakedness, pressure from the care of the churches, etc.

Most of us will not undergo the types of trials that Paul faced. Follow-up discussion could include the credentials of a true servant of Christ in our day. Discussion should bring out that while the specifics will differ from those in Paul’s experience, Christians will face trials, learn to lean on God for daily strength, prove God in multiple circumstances, be willing to undergo deprivation and loss for the sake of the Gospel, will have a burden for the work of the Lord, etc.

8. Paul was planning another trip to Corinth, and he was concerned he might find that ungodly practices had infiltrated the Corinthian congregation. He wrote sternly to the group, hoping they would deal with such issues before he arrived. What particular problems did he name? How can we guard against such problems creeping into the church today? 2 Corinthians 12:20-21

The sins Paul mentioned were: debates (quarrels), envyings (jealousy), wraths (outbursts of temper), strifes (contention), backbitings (slander), whisperings (gossip), swellings (those who have an inflated opinion of themselves), tumults (out-of-control situations caused by people acting without thought of the common good), uncleanness (impurity), fornication (sexual relationships between unmarried individuals), and lasciviousness (lust and debauchery).

As Christians, we must guard carefully against the infiltration of any of these types of behavior into our personal lives. The church is only as pure and godly as the people who make up the church! The ministry has a God-given responsibility to instruct, encourage, and discipline us if necessary, in order to help us align our lives to God’s standards. However, the ultimate responsibility is ours. We must desire holiness of heart and life, and ask God to help us to please Him in every area of our lives. When those in the church make this their highest personal priority, the church will thrive.

CONCLUSION

In Paul’s closing words to the believers at Corinth, he gave a parting plea in the form of a series of exhortations. He encouraged them to seek reconciliation, to share a common purpose, and to live in harmony with one another. His admonition is still fitting for the church today. Like the Corinthians, we must apply the principles of God’s Word in order to have God’s blessing upon our fellowship!
Paul's First Letter to Timothy

1 Timothy 1:1 through 6:21

KEY VERSE FOR MEMORIZATION
“Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity.” (1 Timothy 4:12)

BACKGROUND
Paul’s first epistle to Timothy is thought to have been written about A.D. 64, during the last few years of Paul’s life. It is referred to as a “pastoral epistle,” as are 2 Timothy and Titus. Paul was Timothy’s spiritual father, and wrote to encourage and instruct him in practical subjects such as doctrine, public worship, qualifications for Church officials, and confrontation of false teaching in the Church. He also instructed Timothy concerning the treatment of widows, elders, and servants.

Timothy was the youngest member of the only three-generation family of believers mentioned in the New Testament. He was a young man when he joined Paul in the city of Lystra in Galatia (Acts 16:1-4), on the Apostle’s second missionary journey. His father was a Greek and his mother, Eunice, was a Jew. Paul took Timothy with him on his third missionary trip, spending three years with him in Ephesus and the surrounding areas (Acts 18:23—21:14). After Paul’s trip to Jerusalem for the Passover, he was sent to prison in Rome (Acts 21:18—28:31). Timothy was present with Paul in Rome when Paul wrote three of his prison letters: Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon.

After Paul’s release from his first imprisonment, he and Timothy visited the churches in Ephesus. Paul eventually left for Macedonia while Timothy stayed to minister in Ephesus. It was during this time that Paul wrote this letter to Timothy.

Ephesus was a strategic center of travel and commerce. Situated on the Aegean Sea at the mouth of the Cayster River, the city was one of the greatest seaports of the ancient world. It was distinguished by the Temple of Diana and a theatre that could hold fifty thousand spectators. Many Jews lived there and the seeds of the Gospel are thought to have been sown in Ephesus immediately after Pentecost.

SUGGESTED RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS
1. Paul had a spiritual father/son relationship with Timothy (1 Timothy 1:2, 18). How can we benefit from the example that Paul demonstrated?
The relationship between Paul and Timothy offers us an example of Christian mentorship. Mentorship is a source of blessing and encouragement to both the student and the teacher. Have the class make a list of how both sides benefit from the process. By heeding his mentor’s advice, the mentored has the opportunity to deepen his relationship with the Lord and avoid some “tough” lessons. The mentor is blessed to watch the spiritual growth and maturing of a less-experienced Christian.

2. Why did Paul consider himself to have been “chief” among sinners? 1 Timothy 1:13-15

In some respects, Paul had been a terrible sinner. He had been a blasphemer and had persecuted the Church. Paul did not try to excuse his past. Even though he had extraordinary credentials as a missionary to the Gentiles, he was always mindful of the mercy God had shown him. He clearly felt that if God could save him, He could save anyone.

Ask your students to identify the three sinful areas that Paul mentioned regarding his past (blasphemer, persecutor, and injurious). Lead the class to understand that ignorance does not excuse sinful practice.

3. In Chapter 2, verses 1 and 2, Paul exhorted Timothy to pray for all men, including government officials. What is our responsibility today concerning our government officials?

Our responsibility is the same. It should be noted that Paul was being persecuted by the Roman government and would eventually be executed in Rome during Nero’s reign. Still, Paul did not seek to undermine government authority. He submitted himself to it and trusted that God was ultimately in control.

Ask the class to identify ways to avoid becoming bitter or critical of governmental officials and authorities, and ways to show respect for them and the office they represent. Point out our responsibility to do our part by voting and by praying.

4. In Chapter 3, Paul listed qualifications for two church “offices,” or leadership roles. What were these roles? Why do you think Paul felt it necessary to list the qualifications for those who held these roles?

The two offices were bishops and deacons. The Greek word for bishop is episkopē, which means “one who oversees a Christian church.” In our day, this would be similar to a pastor or district leader. The Greek word for deacon is diákonos, which means “one who serves or ministers.” This could be similar to a lay minister, or one who serves as a key Gospel worker.

Paul emphasized the importance of godly qualifications for those who served in the church because he understood the necessity of having a “good report” in order to maintain the integrity of the Gospel. Have your class identify spiritual qualifications for serving in the Gospel work today. Lead them to recognize that the true qualifications have never changed. All Christians should have these characteristics, so they can be lights in a darkened world and effectively participate in the work of the Lord.

5. Paul stated in chapter 4 verse 8 that “bodily exercise profiteth little.” What point do you think he was making with this phrase? What did he say profits in all things? 1 Timothy 4:7-16

Your class should understand that Paul was not belittling physical well-being. Certainly, a healthy and vigorous physical body is an asset in service to God. Paul said that godliness is profitable in all things. He was pointing out that one’s greatest concern in life ought to be the health and well-being of the inner man.

Ask your students to list the benefits of physical exercise. Does it guarantee a better life? Perfect health? Longevity? Lead the class to understand that while there may be some benefits, there are no guarantees. The most a person could hope to receive would be good health and a long life.

Contrast this by asking your students to list the benefits of exercising godliness. Thoughts brought out could include: the blessing of God on our lives here, the promise of His presence continually with us, and most important of all, the guarantee of Heaven.

Your students should conclude that eternal life outweighs any consideration of the present life. However, you could bring out that some studies indicate that people who attend church on a regular basis live longer, healthier lives.

6. How are we to treat the “elders,” or senior members, of the church? 1 Timothy 5:1-3, 17-19

They are to be treated with honor and respect. Have your students list ways that younger church members can demonstrate these attitudes. This may be an opportunity to develop ideas for future events and visitation activities. Challenge the students to develop a list of ideas and how they can be implemented both individually and as an organized group. As an activity, you could bring notecards for the class to sign and mail to shut-in members.

7. Paraphrase 1 Timothy 6:6, “Godliness with contentment is great gain.” What does “contentment” add to this inspired verse?

Ask students for their paraphrases of this Scripture. Clearly, godliness alone would be great gain. Help the class to recognize the importance of being content with the circumstances and life that God gives us. The gain is peace of mind and confidence in our relationship with God.

Have the class consider the possible consequences of not being content as we attempt to live godly lives. They should conclude that a lack of contentment would expose worldly ambitions and/or wrong motives for our Christian service, or a lack of trust that God knows what is best for us.

8. What is the root of all evil? 1 Timothy 6:10

   The love of money is the root of all evil. You may want to emphasize to your class that it is not money that is evil, but the love of it. Ask the students to list how evil is manifested in the world today. Some suggestions may be crime, drugs, terrorism, and ungodly living. Then have them explain how the love of money, or greed, is the root of many of these activities.

   Ask your class if the love of money can affect Christians. What might be some indicators of this? How can we guard against being caught in the trap of a love for money?

9. Paul reiterated the “good profession” and godly witness, or testimony, that Timothy had demonstrated and lived before his fellow man. Then he encouraged Timothy to “fight the good fight of faith.” How can we do this today? 1 Timothy 6:11-14

   Ask your students to give examples of how they can demonstrate their faith on a daily basis. Some responses may be: praying over their meals at school or on the job, sharing their testimonies with other students or co-workers, and showing a pattern of godliness in their actions and conversations.

CONCLUSION

   Paul’s first letter to Timothy was a charge to all Christians to be living testimonies of God’s life-changing power in the world today.

Paul's Second Letter to Timothy

SOURCE FOR QUESTIONS
2 Timothy 1:1 through 4:22

KEY VERSE FOR MEMORIZATION
“But watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry.” (2 Timothy 4:5)

BACKGROUND
The Book of 2 Timothy is probably the last recorded words of the Apostle Paul. After a period of freedom following his first house arrest in Rome, Paul had been imprisoned again under much more stringent terms. In that setting, this intimate admonition by a veteran minister nearing the end of his life’s assignment to his “son in the faith” was written.

It is possible that Timothy’s family (his mother, Eunice, and grandmother, Lois) was converted on Paul’s first missionary journey through Lystra and Derbe. Paul warmly spoke of the “unfeigned faith” which seemed to belong to all three generations. Later, Timothy joined the missionary team of Paul and Silas as they traveled through Lystra and Derbe during Paul’s second missionary journey (Acts 16:1). He accompanied Paul to many locations, including Athens, Corinth, Ephesus, Thessalonica, Berea, and possibly even Rome. Apparently, he later became Paul’s emissary to the church in Ephesus. Tradition suggests Timothy was the first bishop, or pastor, of the Ephesian church.

Scholars generally date the composition of this letter to be approximately A.D. 67. In A.D. 64, a great fire in Rome devastated much of the city. Emperor Nero subsequently began a period of persecution of Christians in an effort to turn the blame for the fire from himself to Christians. During this time, Paul was imprisoned in a Roman dungeon, and it was from that prison he wrote this letter to Timothy.

Paul’s final instructions included personal encouragement to Timothy to stand as a strong witness in the face of opposition and persecution. The Apostle warned of false teachers and instructed Timothy in how to counter them and their teachings. His advice was sprinkled with gems of wisdom acquired during his years of ministry that he passed on to Timothy and others who would later read this letter. Paul concluded with his “last words,” charging Timothy to remain faithful in his ministry, and indicated that his own ministry was coming to an end.

Tradition holds that after this letter was written, Paul was beheaded for his faith in Jesus.
1. How did Paul address Timothy in verse 2 of chapter 1? What does this indicate about their relationship?

   He addressed the younger man as “my dearly beloved son.” This indicates a very close relationship as spiritual father and son. The characteristics that made this relationship possible were their mutual faithfulness to Christ, Paul’s careful teaching, Timothy’s evident desire to learn and follow instruction, and the trust both of them had in the “promise of life.” Ask your class to share personal examples of mentoring relationships they have been aware of or been blessed by participating in.

2. In reading 2 Timothy 1:6-12, we find indications that Timothy had apparently come under fire for his youth, his association with Paul, and his leadership. Paul encouraged Timothy, who perhaps was more timid by nature than the older man, to persevere and to stand up for the truth he had received. Paul stated that he was “not ashamed” of the testimony of Jesus. What are some ways we can show the world that we are not ashamed of the Gospel?

   Class discussion may bring out such thoughts as being quick to say a word for the Lord when an opportunity arises, giving our testimonies, being faithful in fulfilling our Christian responsibilities, making sure our lives align to the principles of godly living, etc. It might be good to encourage the class to share times when this is not easy, such as praying over their meals in a group of unsaved peers, standing up for beliefs when challenged in a school class, reading one’s Bible in front of others, etc.

3. The three illustrations Paul used in verses 3-7 of chapter 2 are that of a soldier, an athlete, and a farmer. What point is brought out about each of them individually? What attributes do they all have in common?

   A good soldier is not afraid to suffer. He is wholly committed to the cause for which he fights, and willing to lay aside other entanglements for the good of the cause. He endeavors to please the one in authority over him.

   An athlete strives to be the best he can be. He knows that to win the prize, he must abide by the rules of the game.

   The farmer reaps the rewards of his own labor even before the final harvest. Those who labor in God’s service are blessed in this life and hereafter.

   Discussion should bring out that being a successful soldier, athlete, or farmer requires discipline, patience, ambition, willpower, diligence, focus, etc.

4. In chapter 2, Paul warned Timothy to avoid “words to no profit” (verse 14), “profane and vain babblings” (verse 16), and “foolish and unlearned questions” (verse 23). In contrast, Paul encouraged Timothy to “be gentle unto all men, apt to teach, patient, in meekness instructing those that oppose themselves” (verse 24). What outcome to this approach is given in verse 26? How can we develop these positive attributes in our lives?

The outcome given in verse 26 is that lost souls are recovered out of the snare of the devil.

Class discussion of the second question should bring out that a gentle, meek, patient approach can be developed by first recognizing the value of it. Change begins with recognizing our need for it, or with praying for a sensitivity to what needs to be changed.

We can look to Jesus as our supreme Example, and strive to model our dealings with others by contemplating what Jesus would do or how He would respond in any given circumstance. We can pray for patience, wisdom, and grace, knowing that God has promised to provide these when we ask. We can seek out a mentoring relationship with Gospel veterans who have learned these virtues.

5. The main point of chapter 3 is the fact that the last days will be characterized by sinfulness and “perilous times” for believers. These perils will include self-centeredness, materialism, delinquency, pleasure seeking, and superficial Christianity. According to verse 14, how do we combat these influences?

We must continue in the things we have learned, resisting any influence to abandon the faith or modify the doctrine. Paul counseled Timothy to look to his past, and to hold to the basic teachings of the Gospel that are eternally true. We must do the same. Like Timothy, we are surrounded by negative influences, but we must not allow our society, or even trends within the religious world of our day, to crowd out God’s eternal truth. As we spend time each day in the study of God’s Word and in prayer, we will be fortifying the foundation of our Christian faith.

6. The theme of 2 Timothy 4:1-5 is a charge to preach God’s Word. How does this charge apply to those who are not preachers?

Whether or not we are preachers, we are all called to proclaim the Gospel of Jesus Christ through our words and through our lives. We know of the Gospel today because people like Timothy were faithful to their call to promote and disperse the message of truth. Through the years, Gospel veterans have proclaimed, without fear or compromise, God’s power to save the repentant heart, sanctify the converted soul, and pour out the Holy Spirit on sanctified believers. We must be faithful also—always prepared, courageous, and responsive to God-given opportunities to share the Good News. Faithfully passing the Gospel from generation to generation may be more effective than a few preachers proclaiming the Word.
It might be interesting to point out to your class that the word 'charge,' as used in this verse, indicates more than a simple command. It implies a moral obligation to be carried out.

7. What three great statements does Paul make about his earthly life in 2 Timothy 4:7? Why was he able to make these statements with such assurance?

Paul said that he had fought a good fight, that he had finished his course, and that he had kept the faith. He was able to make these statements with assurance because he had prepared for eternity. Ask your students to consider whether they have that same confident expectation of meeting Christ. We can be ready!

The heavenly reward is not just for giants of the faith, but for all those who make their peace with God and keep themselves in a state of readiness for Heaven.

8. Paul knew his time on this earth was short, but he was “ready to be offered.” What were the benefits awaiting Paul for overcoming the trials of this world? Are these benefits unique to Paul? 2 Timothy 2:11; 4:6-8.

Eternal life, a crown of righteousness, and the privilege of being with Jesus await “all them also who love his appearing.”

CONCLUSION

Paul’s final admonition to Timothy was to remain faithful to the truth that had been delivered to him. That truth had brought Paul through every challenge, and at the close of his life, he had the assurance that he was ready to receive a “crown of righteousness.” The same truth will bring us safely to the goal as well.

Titus 1:1 through 3:15 and Philemon 1:1-25

KEY VERSE FOR MEMORIZATION
“For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world.” (Titus 2:11-12)

BACKGROUND
The Book of Titus was written by Paul around A.D. 64, between his first and second imprisonments in Rome. Titus and the two epistles to Timothy were letters of instruction for these two new overseers of churches. They were also the last of Paul’s writings in the Scriptures.

Titus was a Greek man who became a believer and then was carefully mentored by Paul. He accompanied Paul on some of his journeys and traveled as a messenger for Paul on occasion. Eventually, Titus was given the responsibility of overseeing the churches on the small island of Crete.

Crete had significant pagan influences because it was a training ground for Roman soldiers. The people of Crete were known for their laziness, gluttony, and lying. To combat these cultural influences, the churches needed to be founded on sound principles, including that of a disciplined life.

Many Jews lived in Crete. Some of the Christians there probably witnessed the Day of Pentecost more than thirty years before this letter was written (Acts 2:11). There were, however, other Jews who tried to put unreasonable requirements on the Christians of these fledgling churches by forcing them to observe points of the old Law that had been fulfilled in Christ, as well as hundreds of Jewish traditions that had been created independent of the Law. In this epistle, Paul challenged the younger man to uphold sound doctrine in order to withstand these harmful influences.

The Book of Philemon was a letter from Paul to his close, personal friend, Philemon. It was written about A.D. 60, during Paul’s first imprisonment in Rome. Onesimus, a runaway slave belonging to Philemon, had become a convert through Paul’s ministry in Rome.

Paul wrote petitioning Philemon to forgive Onesimus and to receive him as a brother. Paul felt compelled to return the slave to his rightful owner under the Roman law. Yet, Paul asked Philemon to consider a higher law, that of Christian love and brotherhood, and to extend mercy to his slave.

Though this letter was to Philemon, it was also addressed to the elders and the church, which is thought to have been the Colossian church. Thus, not only did the subject of the letter pertain to an individual circumstance, but also to the principle of equality of individuals within the church.

SUGGESTED RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS

1. In Titus 1, Paul outlined to Titus the qualifications needed for leaders in the church. It was not enough to possess an intellectual knowledge of the Scriptures; leaders in the church needed to be people of integrity, character, and service. List and describe the attributes necessary for church leaders (verses 6-9). Are these to be exemplified by pastors and preachers only? Explain your answer.

   1. Blameless – Conscience without fault toward God and man; of good reputation and character.
   2. Husband of one wife – Morally pure; having a proper marriage.
   3. Having faithful children – Showing ability to lead and guide the family.
   4. Steward of God – A good manager of one’s household and resources.
   5. Not selfwilled – Does not put his own desires above those of others; has a heart of love.
   6. Not soon angry – Is not easily riled; makes thoughtful judgments based on reason rather than emotion.
   7. Not given to wine – Temperate in all things.
   8. No striker – Not heavy-handed or violent.
   9. Not given to filthy lucre – Does not receive “dirty money,” bribes, or ill-gotten money.
   10. Lover of hospitality – Warm; welcoming guests; eager to share; generous.
   11. Lover of good men – Surrounding one’s self with good companions rather than evil ones.
   12. Sober – Having self-control; discreet; serious-minded.
   13. Just – Fair; honest before God and man.
   14. Holy – Devout; sinless; godly.
   15. Temperate – Moderate; disciplined.
   16. Holding fast the Word – Unmovable; stable; sound in doctrine.

   Bring out that every Christian should strive for these attributes, for we are all “ministers” of God, whatever our calling may be.

2. In Titus 1:10-16, Paul warned Titus that there would be false teachers who would try to deceive the brethren. Some, for their own selfish ambitions, would try to force these Christians to follow rituals of the old Law. There are voices today, too, that would attempt to lead us astray. How can we know for sure what is truth and what is error?

Verse 14 tells us not to listen to fables or commandments of men that conflict with the truth. We are to measure all teaching by the Word of God. In such honest seeking, His Spirit will guide us. He promised there would be a voice behind us if we turned to the right or to the left from the straight path of truth (Isaiah 30:21).

One illustration you might mention is that bank employees study genuine currency in order to recognize counterfeits. The more we study the truth, the less likely it becomes that we will believe lies.

3. Sound doctrine is much more than a creed — it is a way of life. Our lives are epistles to others. We can be either a spiritual encouragement or discouragement to those around us. Paul was concerned that those in the body of Christ be an influence for good to others in the church. He admonished those who had experience to be mentors and teachers to those who were younger. Why do you think the senior saints are of great value in our church? See Titus 2:2-8. What are some of the things we can learn from them? Why is it important for a person of any age to be a good example?

God placed a high responsibility and value on older men and women. He indicated that they were to teach the younger people. What a wonderful asset the testimonies of seniors are to a Gospel meeting! The older saints are a valuable resource to encourage the young. Because of their years of experience, they can teach the younger ones to be temperate, to be sound in faith and charity, to show holy behavior, to have patience, to be loving and respectful spouses, and many other good things. You may want to discuss with your class some practical applications of these virtues. If your class members are young people, encourage them to get acquainted with some of the elderly saints. Many of the seniors have wonderful stories to tell.

We need to be good examples, whatever age we are, because there are those who observe us. They may be children, new converts, the unsaved, or those who look up to us in some other way. We all need each other in this Gospel!

4. We know good deeds will not take us to Heaven. We read, “Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us” (Titus 3:5). Yet, verse 8 tells us that we should “be careful to maintain good works.” How do these two statements fit together?

It is true that nothing “good” we can do will make us worthy of Heaven. Only our surrender to Christ and the receiving of His righteousness will bring salvation. That godly righteousness within us will then motivate us to do good works. We are admonished to be careful to continue these good works, as it could be easy to become lazy or distracted by the cares of life.

You may ask your class to name some of the good works the Lord would have us do. Examples could include: feed a brother who is hungry, help someone who is in need, visit the sick, be faithful in our church duties, write a note of encouragement to the lonely, reach out to a lost world with the hope of the Gospel. There is so much to do and the laborers are so few!

5. Paul was an Apostle and instructor of many churches. In his letter to his friend, Philemon, he had the authority to demand that Philemon forgive and restore his slave. Why do you think Paul, rather than commanding, pled with Philemon to forgive Onesimus and accept him as a brother?

Bring out that in our relationships with other people, a soft touch usually has more influence than a demanding, overbearing manner.

Discuss the fact that the Gospel is based on free will—God made man with the power of choice to do good or evil. God wanted a friend, not a robot. God loves the sacrifices of obedience from a willing heart. Paul was wise to give Philemon the choice of how to deal with his slave. A sacrifice from a willing heart is so much more valuable to God than one that is coerced. Ask the students to think of the things they have given to the Lord, such as money, time, talents, an act of forgiveness, etc. Have these offerings been given with a willing and cheerful heart?

6. Paul asked Philemon to forgive Onesimus, who had been Philemon’s personal property before he ran away—an act which was punishable by death under Roman law. Philemon was asked not only to forgive him, but to receive him as a brother. We may be asked to forgive someone who has done us a great wrong. Is it always easy to forgive? What should we do if we find it difficult to forgive?

It may not always be easy to forgive. However, it will help us to remember how much Jesus forgave us. We may have to spend time in prayer, asking God to help us see the matter from His perspective. As we pray and surrender the hurt to God, we will find a release. This is a form of consecration, of submitting our will to God. As we do this, we will grow stronger in grace. We must then remember not to pick up the burden of unforgiveness at a later time. We must keep the matter consecrated to God.

Your class may want to share times in which the offering of forgiveness was difficult, but brought peace.

7. In Paul’s day, the Roman, Greek, and Jewish cultures had strict levels of position within society. Slaves were demeaned and women had few rights. However, the Gospel restores human dignity. As Christians, we are to treat all people with honor and respect. What are ways we can show respect to people who are different from ourselves? What are ways we may show a lack of respect without intending to do so?

We must always remember the Golden Rule. If we try to put ourselves in the place of others, we will have insight on how to act. Others usually desire to be treated with fairness, with no importance given to the differences between them and us. People of different income, education, gender, age, appearance, race, or ability can experience wonderful love and fellowship.

We need to avoid ethnic and gender jokes that are negative and humor that exploits any particular group of people. The criterion should be: does this disrespect the other person or people? Godly love to all should be our guideline.

CONCLUSION

Paul’s letters to Titus and Philemon now serve as admonitions to us. Let us take heed and use these words as encouragement in our Christian walks.

Peter’s First Letter

SOURCE FOR QUESTIONS
1 Peter 1:1 through 5:14

KEY VERSE FOR MEMORIZATION
“Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you: but rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ’s sufferings; that, when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy.” (1 Peter 4:12-13)

BACKGROUND
The Book of 1 Peter is a letter written by Peter around A.D. 62-64, to the saints who had been scattered throughout Asia minor because of the rampant persecution of the time. Emperor Nero had come into power in Rome and great persecution followed in his wake. History tells us that Peter was later executed during this same period of oppression.

The purpose of Peter’s letter was to comfort and encourage the saints who were suffering. Before He ascended, Jesus had told Peter to “strengthen thy brethren” (Luke 22:32) and to “feed my sheep” (John 21:15-17). Peter was fulfilling this charge by encouraging believers in their time of intense persecution.

He offered concluding thoughts when he said, “I have written briefly, exhorting, and testifying that this is the true grace of God wherein ye stand” (1 Peter 5:12). Peter was describing their ability to stand as “the true grace of God.”

Peter started the epistle by giving thanks for salvation, and pointed out the hope there is in the Gospel. He reminded the saints that adversity would come—in fact, it should be expected—but these trials would work to strengthen their faith. Peter admonished the saints to live holy lives, reminding them of Christ who suffered for them and had redeemed them. They were encouraged to react with love in the face of persecution, just as Jesus did when He faced the Cross.

Beginning with chapter 2 verse 11, Peter advised the believers on how to conduct themselves in many aspects of their lives. He spoke of submission to civil authority, to their masters, within the family, and among each other. He wanted them to live in God’s will, with prayer, love, hospitality, and service.

Peter drew this epistle to a close by reminding the saints to be vigilant and to resist the devil, who as a roaring lion would try to devour them. He let them know that God’s grace would be available to make them perfect, established, strengthened, and settled in the faith.
SUGGESTED RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS

1. The saints Peter was addressing were suffering great persecution. He encouraged them by stating that there are benefits in suffering. What purpose might suffering accomplish in God’s people? What should be our attitude when we go through trials? 1 Peter 1:7; 4:12-13

   The saints will be tried in the fire, but their faith, which is more precious than gold, will bring them praise, honor, and glory. Suffering makes individual believers and the church as a whole stronger and more dependent on God. When we go through temptations, trials, or persecution, it can be a time of refining for us. As we seek the Lord, embrace the promises in His Word, and fasten our eyes on the goal that awaits us, we will find our strength grows from day to day.

   We should not think it strange, or become discouraged, when we are tried, but we should rejoice that, as Jesus suffered for us, we are given the privilege to suffer for Him. Discuss with your class other ways we can be encouraged when we face trials or temptations.

2. In 1 Peter 1:15-16, we are admonished to be holy as God is holy. How is this possible when we are born with a sinful nature, and we live in a world where sin is all around us? How can we maintain our hearts in a manner so God’s holiness can shine out through us?

   Christ has provided a remedy for sin through His Blood. When we are saved, we are given power to have victory over sin. When we are sanctified, a deep work of holiness is accomplished within us because the root of sin that we are born with is taken out. This results when we set ourselves apart to be separated unto God.

   It takes effort to maintain a heart that reflects God’s holiness. Remind your students that God in Heaven is holy, and that Jesus, who was God in the flesh, came down as man and maintained a holy life on earth. He understands our temptations, and He was victorious over sin. Therefore, we can be also. Ask your class how we can maintain our hearts in holiness. They may suggest the following: we need to study God’s Word, commune with Him in prayer, keep our eyes focused on eternal values rather than earthly cares, and gather with the saints in worship whenever possible.

3. The saints were instructed to “love one another with a pure heart fervently” (1 Peter 1:22) and to “have fervent charity among yourselves” (1 Peter 4:8). What does it mean to love with a pure heart? How do we love a brother or sister in Christ fervently?

   To have pure love would be to love others as God loves us. God’s love is unconditional. He loved us while we were yet sinners. The love of this world is usually conditional—people love those who love them, those who can meet their needs, or who can make them feel good.

God commissions us to love even our enemies. We are to love those who do not treat us right (despitefully use us) and those who may not return our love. We can only do this if we have God’s love in our hearts. If we are to love our enemies, surely it should be easy to love those who are in the household of faith.

To love fervently is to put effort into our love. If someone is hungry, feed him. If someone needs a helping hand, supply it. If someone needs a hug or a smile, be there for him. Discuss with your class the meaning of the statement “charity [love] shall cover the multitude of sins.” Bring out that when we love as we should, we will not be easily offended by little things another person does or says.

4. The epistle of 1 Peter has practical advice for families, and sets guidelines and rules for conduct in the home. Peter indicated that wives are to be subordinate to their husbands, winning unbelievers by their holy conduct (1 Peter 3:1-6). Husbands are to tenderly honor their wives, lest their prayers be hindered (1 Peter 3:7). What are ways women can show submission and respect to their husbands? How can men show love and honor to their wives?

The Bible establishes family structure. God ordained that the husband is to be the head of the house, and the wife is to submit, or be under, his God-given authority. The point should be made that a subordinate role is not an inferior one.

Ask your class to help you make lists of how women can show submission and respect to their husbands, and how men can show love and honor to their wives. Suggestions may include: a gentle attitude, kindness, being polite, making an effort to please him, not complaining about him behind his back, abiding by his decisions, praying for him.

Suggestions for husbands may include: listening to her thoughts and suggestions, protecting her, remembering she has less physical strength, being polite (saying thank you), praying for her.

5. In 1 Peter 3:15, we are told to always be ready to answer anyone who questions us about our faith. The next verse says that our lives need to be above reproach in the sight of others. How do these two verses tie together concerning our witness for the Lord?

An old saying states that our actions speak so loudly people can’t hear what we say. Verse 15 tells us to sanctify the Lord God in our hearts. In verse 16 we are admonished to have a good conscience before others. If we owe someone an apology or restitution, and do not do it, our testimony will be marred. As we strive every day to live a Christ-like life before others, they will be much more likely to receive what we say.
Discuss with your class other ways we can prepare so we will be ready to answer people when they ask about the hope we have in Jesus.

6. Peter instructed the early believers to be good stewards of the talents and gifts God had given them (1 Peter 4:10-11). Often we think of stewardship in terms of money. While it is important to use our financial resources carefully for God’s glory, good stewardship also encompasses time and talents. What are some excuses we might be tempted to make when we are called to use our talents for the Lord? What are ways to overcome in this area?

Class discussion will likely bring up a number of different excuses. We may be tempted to think developing a talent will take too much time or effort. If we do work to develop a talent, we may be tempted to use it for things other than the glory of God. (A talent used to earn a living could still be to God’s glory.) Feelings of inadequacy or fear of failure might prompt us to hide our talents.

Your students’ suggestions for how to overcome may include: asking God for a burden for lost souls, meditating on the value of a soul and reaching out for the lost, making daily consecration a part of our lives, seeking to please God more than ourselves, asking for God’s perfect will in our lives, remembering that God will give “grace to the humble” (1 Peter 5:5).

7. In 1 Peter 5:7, we are told to cast our cares on God, “for he careth for you.” Life is not always easy. We will most likely face separation from someone we care about, sickness, pain, weakness, death, or other difficulties during our lifetime. How wonderful to know there is Someone to help us carry the burden! How can we cast our burdens on Him and leave them there, without picking them up again by worry or doubt?

Class discussion will bring out that this is not always easy. The mental image of “casting” our burdens on God is a good one. As we seek God in faith and abandon our worries to His care, we will find release and victory. We will remember that God does all things well, and that He will take care of the situation. As we focus on that victory, and not the problem, we will continue to have peace. Keeping our hearts focused on God and His grace will enable us to leave our burdens with Him. Asking others to pray with us for God’s help and grace brings comfort because we know others are beseeching God on our behalf.

With the thought of helping each other pray, have the class share requests or burdens they may have. It helps in difficult times to know the family of God is standing with you.

8. We read in 1 Peter 5:8, “The devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour.” It is important to know one’s enemy. We realize Satan has power and experience, and he may seem a fearsome foe. He may put up a fierce fight at times. Why can we feel peaceful in the face of such a terrible adversary? What can we do to assure ourselves of victory?

We can feel at peace because we know Jesus defeated the devil at Calvary. Through Christ we will always be on the winning side. Verse 8 of chapter 5 tells us to be sober and vigilant, so we must not take the battle lightly. However, as we begin to resist the devil (verse 9) with steadfast faith, we will have victory.

CONCLUSION

The Book of 1 Peter encourages us that although our commitment to Christ may bring suffering and persecution at times, we can rejoice because we are following Jesus, who suffered for us. When our faith is tried, the process will refine us, and that is more precious than gold.
Peter’s Second Letter

SOURCE FOR QUESTIONS
2 Peter 1:1 through 3:18

KEY VERSE FOR MEMORIZATION
“The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to usward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance.” (2 Peter 3:9)

BACKGROUND
Whereas the epistle of 1 Peter defined the true grace of God as the ability for Christians to stand in the face of intense suffering and persecution, 2 Peter addressed the distinction between true and false teachers. The words of 1 Peter were designed to encourage and strengthen the brethren. The words of 2 Peter were designed to help them stand in the face of the false teachers who had emerged. In 2 Peter 3:1-2, we find the purpose of the epistle: “This second epistle, beloved, I now write unto you; in both which I stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance: that ye may be mindful of the words which were spoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandment of us the apostles of the Lord and Saviour.”

These early believers had been converted as the result of true teaching, and they understood the words of the Lord Jesus and the prophets. With this letter, Peter encouraged them to hold to those truths. At the same time, he reminded them to be alert to false teachers, including “false prophets . . . who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction” (2 Peter 2:1).

The style of the letter is that of a “testament” or farewell discourse. Peter’s impending death, which he alluded to in verse 14 of chapter 1, set the backdrop for such a testament to be written. This form of address was well known in Old Testament and early Christian writing traditions. It gave opportunity for a great leader to summarize his teachings, instruct his followers, and make warnings concerning the future. These words often carried special weight because of their nearness to the final passing of the leader.

It appears that with the passing of the first generation of disciples, questions began to arise concerning the Lord’s promised return. Peter’s letter responded to these questions, mounting a defense of the apostolic expectation of coming judgment and final salvation. The letter also used the imminent return of the Lord as motivation for righteous living until that day.
In this epistle, Peter confronted false teachers and heresies with the Gospel message in terms which were applicable to the Hellenistic (Greek) culture. He refuted skepticism over end-time issues and condemned the lowering of moral standards, including purity and holiness. Examples of judgment from Old Testament writers were used to remind Christians of the faithfulness of God both to deliver the godly and to judge the wicked. Peter outlined the requirements of godly living, grounding those requirements in the abundant salvation offered by Christ, and the inspiration of the Scriptures.

SUGGESTED RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS

1. Peter opened his letter with a greeting to those who had obtained “like precious faith with us.” Why is faith precious? Why do you think Peter used the word “like” (or “alike”) to describe the faith they had?

   Discussion should bring up several reasons why faith is a very precious commodity. Without it, we cannot please God. We walk by faith; we live by faith. It is how we receive from God. By faith we know that the worlds were framed.

   In focusing on the word “like,” your students should understand that the faith spoken of here was not faith in general, but was literally a faith of the same kind that Peter had obtained. It was important that the believers’ faith was the same as the faith obtained by the Apostle, since the theme of 2 Peter would be a warning against heresy, false teaching, and counterfeit “faith” which denied the return of Jesus and the need for godly pure living until that time. For the same reasons, it is important today that our faith be anchored in the truths taught by Jesus Christ and His Apostles.

2. In 2 Peter 1:3-4, it is clear that God has given us all that we need for life and godliness by His power through Christ. He mentioned “exceeding great and precious promises,” which are given so that we can be partakers of the divine nature, escaping the world’s corruption. It is out of this sufficiency that we are called to diligently supplement or nourish our lives in Christ by adding certain godly qualities. List and describe the attributes Peter mentioned that Christians should diligently seek in their spiritual lives.

   2 Peter 1:5-7

   - Virtue = moral excellence and goodness, spiritual fortitude. We exhibit virtue when we do what is right.
   - Knowledge = the learning of information with accompanying wisdom for application. In this text, the focus is on knowledge of the Word of God, and the necessity of applying that knowledge in our daily lives.
   - Temperance = self-control. The world might define temperance as being moderate in one’s sinful practices, such as smoking or drinking. A Christian would put it this way: Do not do anything that is Patience = endurance, steadfastness, perseverance. Patience includes endurance during trials, and longsuffering toward those about us who are difficult to get along with. You might ask your class for examples of when patience is necessary. Some may mention short-term issues, such as a traffic jam or poor service in a restaurant. In the Bible, patience generally deals with trials of a long-term scale, such as spiritual persecution or lingering physical afflictions. Patience in such cases is exemplified by calm, uncomplaining endurance.

Godliness = a manner of life that reflects our relationship with God; an outward manifestation of His nature within us.

Brotherly kindness = brotherly love (from the Greek word philo indicating deep friendship and commitment). This is the love and caring of fellow Christians toward one another. The Bible instructs us to bear one another’s burdens and to be kind, tender-hearted, and forgiving of one another.

Charity = love (from the Greek word agape indicating selfless, sacrificial love). Charity is unselfish Christian love for others, which extends far beyond the confines of the local body of believers to include those who seem unlovable or farthest from God.

3. Peter did not indicate that the attributes listed in question two were optional. If we do not seek to possess them, how will this affect our walk with God? (2 Peter 1:8-10) What will be the result if we do?

Verses 8-10 indicate that failure to seek and obtain these attributes brings a sort of spiritual blindness or shortsightedness, which leads to an unfruitful life. Neglect will stunt one’s spiritual development. Students should understand that this admonition does not imply that we can earn, deserve, or work our way into the kingdom, but adding these attributes will foster growth and strength in our Christian walk, helping us to remain faithful to God’s plan for our lives.

If we do seek these attributes, we will be fruitful in the knowledge of the Lord, and we will gain strength to keep us from falling. Any one of those traits is a bonus, but increasing in all of them is a tremendous spiritual benefit.

4. Peter, James, and John heard the voice of God at the transfiguration of Christ. Peter alluded to this experience in 2 Peter 1:16-18 and, in the concluding verses of the chapter, indicated that God’s written Word is as reliable and verifiable as the spoken words heard on the mountain. Why is this true? 2 Peter 1:20-21

Like the words heard on the mountain, Scripture is also from God. Peter declared that the Word of God was not inspired by human will or action, but by the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is a part of the Divine Trinity and fully God, just as God the Father is part of the Divine Trinity. When the Holy Spirit moved upon the hearts of holy men who followed God, the authority of God was present in their words. For that reason, believers of Peter’s day and ours can trust in the truthfulness and authority of the Bible, and consequently have a responsibility to heed that authority.

5. In chapter 2, Peter predicted that false teachers would imperil the church by coming in “privily,” or under pretense, disguising their motives. What types of false doctrinal teachings can we observe in religious society today? How can we guard ourselves from being influenced by them?

Your students may bring up such teachings as eternal security, the allowance for divorce and remarriage, a failure to preach the necessity of sanctification as a second, definite work of grace, humanism, etc. Insidious infiltration could occur under the guise of political correctness, ecumenicalism, a disparaging of tradition, or an effort to be non-judgmental. Today, true Christianity often is assailed by accusations of intolerance or bigotry. While it is never appropriate to be vindictive or harsh in our treatment of others, we must not minimize the seriousness of false doctrine or the judgment that will fall upon those who teach or embrace it.

Discussion of the second question should center on the importance of continuing to teach, experience, and live the doctrines that we have received from godly men and women of old—doctrines based on the teachings of the Apostles.

6. Make a list of some of the word pictures Peter painted in chapter 2 of those who teach falsely or embrace false teachings. Why do you think he chose to use some unpleasant illustrations?

The list of examples used by Peter could include:

- Natural brute beasts (verse 12)
- Spots and blemishes (verse 13)
- Adulterous eyes, always sinning, greedy cursed children (verse 14)
- Dry wells, storm clouds (verse 17)
- Dog returned to vomit (verse 22 quoting Proverbs 26:11)
- Pig wallowing in mire (verse 22)

He also described false teachers as:

- Having lascivious (“pernicious”) ways (verse 2)
- Making merchandise of others, or engaging in exploitation (verse 3)
- Being presumptuous, self-willed, not afraid to speak against angelic hosts (verse 10)
- Promising liberty but being servants of corruption themselves (verse 19)
No doubt Peter used the most descriptive language available to urgently warn believers regarding those who teach false doctrine. He stressed the danger by drawing vivid pictures of the nature of their acts, and also of the sure judgment that will follow embracing such teaching.

7. Why was Peter so concerned that believers stir up their pure minds by way of remembrance?

2 Peter 3:1-2

Peter admonished them to remember the historical account because he was afraid they would forget. As the first generation of believers began to die, some false teachers started to question the bodily return of Jesus bringing final judgment upon the earth. These questions led to a lowering of the moral, godly lifestyles that had been carefully lived in anticipation of the soon return of the Lord. Peter reminded believers of the words of the prophets and Apostles concerning the last days. He also warned them to beware of “willful ignorance,” as had been the error of those at the time of Noah.

8. In 2 Peter 3:10-14, what actions did Peter call for from believers?

Peter called the believers to holy conduct, which reflects God’s nature and purpose for humanity. He also encouraged them to look for the return of the Lord, when righteousness will be the order of the new creation kingdom. Finally, he charged believers to have diligence in living pure, godly lives as they waited for Jesus’ return.

Verses 15-16 may refer to how false teachers had twisted some of the Apostle Paul’s letters concerning Christian liberty, equating ungodly living with liberty. Peter acknowledged the difficulty of some of Paul’s words but assured them of the unity of Paul’s teachings with the coming of the Lord and with godly living.

9. We are instructed to “grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ” (2 Peter 3:18). Note several ways this spiritual growth can be encouraged in our lives.

We must continue to live in the grace that God gave through Christ. It is this grace that teaches us how to live godly lives in this present world. We also must continually pursue a more intimate relationship with God through Christ until we meet Him face to face. Time spent in prayer and study of God’s Word will help us grow. Gathering with other believers for worship and encouragement will help as well. Searching for ways to serve others in Christ’s stead will also provide a fertile field for Christian growth.

You may wish to conclude your session by noting that these final words of Peter point us to two foundational truths necessary to make our calling and election sure. The first of these is that it is by grace we are saved. Jesus gave His life freely so that our sins can be forgiven. Without the grace of God, all of humanity would be eternally lost. However, because of His grace, all who will come to repentance are offered new life in Christ.

The second foundational truth is that God desires an intimate and personal relationship with humanity. This was the plan from the Garden of Eden until today. God wants us to know Him and has sent Jesus to make this relationship possible. What a privilege is ours!

CONCLUSION

If there were ever a time when individual believers and the Church as a whole needed to rehearse and heed the warnings of 2 Peter, it is today! Peter asked, “Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God?” (2 Peter 3:11-12). This is certainly an appropriate question for today’s generation!
